SAINT PAUL 'S VOICE

June/July 2008

Many in our congregation, and even pastors in the Westminster Conference, have been going through sickness and many trials and tribulations. We know that suffering is part of this life. Our suffering may be from brokenness, job loss, job dissatisfaction, physical pains, worries, grief, and many numerous things. Suffering is part of this life. No one escapes it. How is one to respond?

I suggest you read I Peter 3: 13 – 22. Peter reminds us: “Who will harm you if you are eager to do what is good? But even if you do suffer for doing what is right, you are blessed.” When we do what Jesus wants and it brings hardship then we tend to look at suffering differently. Others may watch to see how we handle the suffering. For us Christians, we will manage to keep on going and live with hope and joy. It is because of our faith in Jesus Christ.

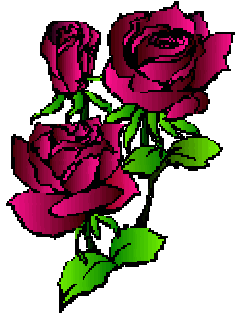

We must always be ready to point to the presence of Jesus who is our hope in the midst of every wrong and terrible thing that happens to us. It is our task to point others to Jesus and we must do that in a way that doesn't turn people off but, encourages them to keep trying to see for themselves the healing light of Jesus.

If we listen to Peter's instructions, we know it doesn't matter how people approach us or react to us. We are not to become frustrated by their attitudes or by our inability to get through to them. That is the work of the Holy Spirit. Our task is to make certain that we don't make the Holy Spirit's work any harder than it already is. God does bring blessings out of the most horrendous events in our lives. We may not see it immediately but, one day, by the grace of God and because God is present, we will be able to see once again that life is good and worth living. In the meantime, we will persevere in hope because we know the faithfulness of the One we follow. Jesus didn't give up on us when things got really bad and we should not give up on Jesus.

Our hope and salvation is in our belief of what Jesus did for us. Each of us is touched by God's love. May we hang on to that hope as we suffer the woes of this world. Isn't it wonderful to have that joy of the Lord? May God's merciful healing touch you in whatever you may be suffering.

Love in Christ,

Pastor Mel Stricklin

Thank You

We thank everyone who made our blood drive a success. Many people will be helped by the gift of life by all the blood donations. We especially thank Suzi Lyons for heading this up and by Maidie Brown who assists with the set up. A blood drive is held here at our church every April and September. Be sure to sign up to give your gift of life to someone at our next blood drive.

We thank Sarah Morris for heading up the flea market fund raiser that is held each month from April through October and to those who volunteer their time for this event.

Special thanks go to Richard Harris and Carol Hunt who oversaw the purchase and installation of the playground equipment.
